FEATURES

- 20 Connecticut Connections of the Dayton C. Miller Collection
by Barbara Hopkins
The center of flutemaking in the early 1800s was Connecticut, and many of the flutes created there are now housed at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C.—the site of the 2015 Annual NFA Convention.
- 26 The Library of Congress: Flute Central
by Nancy Toff
Riches await flute enthusiasts who visit Washington, D.C.'s famous library, which houses flute resources including the world's largest collection of flute-related materials.
- 36 Collaborative Play: Flutist-Composer Commissions
by Jennie Oh Brown
Three major new concerto commissions illustrate how flutists can help carve their own repertoire for the 21st century.
- 42 Bach's Badinerie: A Spoof on his Rondeau
by Betty Bang Mather and Dean M. Karns Baroque music and dance specialists explore Bach's ingenious musical wit in the closing air of his Overture-Suite in B Minor for flute and strings.
- 72 The Wide World of Alexander Murray
by Zart Dombourian-Eby
The Lifetime Achievement Award recipient began career networking while sailing on a ship to South Africa.
- 76 Quality of Life: Harvey Sollberger
by Kyle Dzapo
The Lifetime Achievement Award recipient began his musical life at age 4 playing the accordion but soon expanded to flute performance, composing, conducting, teaching, and concert planning.
