FEATURES

- 20 The Virtuoso Fife: Not Just a Simple Signal Instrument
by William White, Crystal Lee, and William Parks
In spite of its reputation as a tool for military use, the fife in fact has a virtuosic history that goes beyond battlefield signaling.
- 30 A Sampling of Compelling Flute-Centered Composers
by Francesca Arnone
Six major composers writing for the flute today—Martin Amlin, Daniel Dorff, Eric Ewazen, Katherine Hoover, Lowell Liebermann, and Gary Schocker—hew to their own visions and belie easy categories.
- 40 Étude Effusions
by Molly Barth
An unapologetic lover of études explores their place in today's practice, what leading pedagogues think of them, and how they shape the performances of those who use them a lot, a little—or not at all.
- 58 Katherine Hoover: An Artist's Journey
by Kyle Dzapo
The 2016 Lifetime Achievement Award recipient has created a rich, lasting repertoire of compositions for the flute—and beyond. A celebrated composer of “our repertoire,” Katherine Hoover also creates works for other instruments, writes poems, and runs a respected music publishing company.
- 60 James Pellerite: The Right Place at the Right Time
by Zart Dombourian-Eby
2016 NFA Lifetime Achievement Award recipient James Pellerite has excelled as orchestral flutist, flutemaker, teacher, Native American flute performer, and publisher. Insatiable curiosity plus an uncanny skill in being at the right place at the right time contribute to his colorful resume.
