FEATURES

- 18 Cassandra's Dream Song
by Lisa Cella
The story of a mythical woman's journey into mad despair is embodied in the choices—and madness-invoking struggles—pressed onto the performer by the complex, variable structures of Ferneyhough's work. The author explores one possible map through the journey.
- 28 The Flute In Jazz: Window on World Music
by Peter Westbrook
The historical timeline of the flute in jazz is hardwon and brief, but it's growing fast—in both time and space, as it spreads outward to embrace the music of a global community.
- 36 Seeking François Devienne
by William Montgomery
Mysteries still shroud much of the life of this French Revolution-era flutist and composer, but one element is certain: the prolific output and enduring quality of Devienne's work. A noted flutist and pedagogue describes what he discovered following his detective work throughout Europe and speculates about the questions that remain.
